STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like, 15c and 30c.

NEW CLOAK AND SUIT STORE OPEN IN CAPITAL

Hudson Emporium to Put Branch in Washington.

Preparations that have been going on for several weeks are now completed for the opening of the Washington branch of the Hudson Cloak and Suit stores at 919 F street north-west.

This store, which is one of a national chain with branches in principal Eastern cities, was formally opened today. Attractive window displays have been arranged, showing a complete line of women's apparel, coats, wraps, evening and afternoon frocks and furs.

Before establishing a store in Washington, the Hudson Cloak and Suit Stores Company made a thorough study of Washington shopping conditions and Washington shoppers, and were so convinced of the possibilities there that they waited several months in order to secure a suitable location for their beautifully equipped store.

The interior of the store has been handsomely decorated in gray and gold, with circassian walnut and inlaid floors for their wall cases, window background and window trim. For the convenience of shoppers, many upholstered settees have been provided, with beveled French mirrors placed at convenient distances.

Special care has been taken to install a lighting system which affords the nearest form to daylight that modern science has yet achieved. This is a special convenience to all those who are particular in matching colors and delicate shades.

The splendid fittings of this fine store, the remarkable values it will offer, the ability and squaredeal policy of its management, and the great success of Hudson Cloak and Suit Stores in other cities, all indicate that it will enjoy large patronage among Washington's discriminating shoppers. Its opening today will be a noteworthy event in the local business world.

NATION'S PURSE TO BE GUARDED BY NEW SYSTEM

Cong. Madden, Appropriations Head, Revises Methods of Handling Federal Finances.

By J. BART CAMPBELL, International News Service.

The chief trouble with the national purse has been that it has had too many strings.

Until the budget system was evolved those strings either dangled loosely while the taxpayers' money was split in many directions or were loosened by those who, at the Capitol, had an eye on the local "pork barrel."

The efforts of President Harding and Budget Director Dawes to tighten the strings are being ably seconded by Congressman Martin E. Madden, of Chicago, the new chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

Little is heard of what Madden is doing to effect real economies in the making of Congressional appropriations. He has permitted Dawes to crowd him out of the spotlight. But that is the Madden way. He works better without band music. His modesty is attested by the fact that he is the shortest sketch in the Congressional Directory.

The brevity of that is typical of the man whose unusual attainments caused him to be selected to preside over its all-important Appropriations Committee.

Madden Working Hard.

Madden has just effected not only a complete reorganization of the committee, but of the system turning out appropriations from the committee "hopper." Upon the House devolves the constitutional prerogative of originating fiscal legislation, and upon Madden and his committee rests the difficult and complex task of drafting the different appropriations bills for each fiscal year.

In his efforts to effect real reforms and economies, Madden has an experienced assistant in Marcellus C. Sheld, who has been chief clerk of the committee for a number of years. Madden frankly admits that Sheld knows more about appropriations than any member of the House or even Director Dawes can ever hope to know.

Madden has just reorganized his committee to enable it to consider the first budget which President Harding will submit to Congress under the new budget act at the opening of the regular session in December.

The act provides for the submission of two budgets—one to follow the outline of the old book of estimates and the old appropriations bills, and the other (the alternative budget) to be made up according to such arrangements as the budget director, with the approval of the President, shall prescribe.

The House Appropriations Committee heretofore has been subdivided into thirteen committees, one for each of the twelve regular annual appropriations bills and one for all the deficiency appropriations bills.

These bills, with few exceptions, were not constructed upon any well-defined logical lines. Most Government departments and bureaus got part of their appropriations in one bill and part in another. It was impossible to ascertain the total appropriations for the departments or bureaus without consulting two or more of the bills.

Appropriations bills were, in the main, so lacking in business system as to be often confusing to Congress and the departments and bureaus themselves, and utterly incomprehensible to the public.

Madden and Dawes are in accord on the submission of the alternative estimates and the consideration of the appropriations bills which are to be based upon those estimates. The new system will place all appropriations for a given department or bureau in the one and same bill and enable anyone to ascertain readily the amount proposed to be appropriated without having to consult several separate bills.

PASTY-FACED MAN HAS POOR BLOOD

Needs Pepto-Mangan to Make New, Rich, Red Blood

The man whose complexion is pasty has impure blood. His health is not robust and the sickly pallor on his face shows it. He acts and looks and feels exhausted most of the time. Everybody he meets notices it.

When a pasty-faced man takes Gude's Pepto-Mangan for a while, he builds up his blood. It drives out the impurities and makes new, rich, red blood. When the new healthy blood gets to work, his complexion clears up, his eyes brighten and he looks alive and robust instead of droopy and sickly. He begins to like the food that is set before him at each meal. He feels like a new man.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan makes red corpuscles by supplying iron and other ingredients that thin-blooded people need. Drug stores have it in liquid or tablet form. The full name, "Gude's Pepto-Mangan," is on each package.
